Legislature Grants 3,600 Political Sub-Divisions Power to Tax

SOME TAX INCOMES

55 Subdivisions Adopt Amusement Taxes; 32 Others Consider Such

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
HARRISBURG, Apr. 24—Two hundred and thirty Pennsylvania municipalities either have adopted or are considering new local taxes authorized under broad legislation by the General Assembly in 1947.

In a report on the new tax law, the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce reported 75 additional municipalities have imposed or have begun consideration of imposition of new local levies in the three-week period ending April 1st.

The Legislature granted 3600 political subdivisions within the State the power to tax "any and all subjects of taxation" not already taxed by the Commonwealth.

"In its overall aspects, the present system bears no close resemblance to any existing elsewhere in the United States or to any widely-held theory of local finance," the report stated.

"Numerous local units in Pennsylvania currently are initiating a wide variety of new taxes under authority of the act. What the end result will be, few persons are willing to prophesy at this time. Whether the new law will prove beneficial or detrimental to the State as a whole remains to be seen."

Amusement taxes remain the most popular new source of revenue, according to the report, although income levies showed the most pronounced increase in the three-week period.

Fifty-five subdivisions have adopted amusement taxes while 32 others are considering the levy, the Chamber stated. Headed by Pittsburgh, the list includes 22 third class cities, 49 boroughs, 6 first class towns.

PEDESTRIANS NEED TO OBSERVE LAW

Violation of Traffic Rules Responsible for Many Accidents

MUST BE ON 'QUI VIVE'

By Julien H. Harvey
Manager, National Conservation Bureau

(This is the second of a series of 10 articles on street and highway safety, written by nationally recognized accident prevention specialists and published by this newspaper in the interests of greater traffic safety.)

The time has come when all communities need laws to control pedestrians as well as automobiles. All of us are pedestrians most of the time. Therefore we feel more in our own element when we are walking, and as a group we fail to understand the limitations of the automobile. Even experienced drivers forget these limitations when they become pedestrians. Year after year the records continue to show that nearly three out of every four pedestrians killed in motor vehicle accidents were either committing an unsafe act or violating a traffic law. Crossing against a signal was reported in approximately 18 percent of the accidents involving adult pedestrians. Playing in the roadway and crossing between crossways accounted for three-fifths of the child pedestrian accidents. Unless we mend our ways, the same tragic story will be repeated in 1948.

An effective solution to the problem of pedestrian accidents can only be attained through firm use of the three E's of safety: namely, education, engineering and enforcement. Pedestrian laws should be designed not only to control the walker, but to inform the automobile driver as to his area of responsibility. They should provide for the following:

1. Crosswalks should be clearly defined at all intersections in urban areas and pedestrians prohibited

UNFAIR TO THE VOTERS

For several months, there has been a quiet effort afoot in Washington to freeze parts of the New Deal in power, so that it can keep right on going even though the voters next November replace the present Administration with a Republican President and Congress.

Both power and jobs are involved. Some of the drive comes simply from those who have held office for years under the Roosevelt-Truman regime, and want to keep their fat and pleasant jobs indefinitely.

But some of the impulse rises out of what is called "ideology." There have been zealous converts to Europe's "New Order" working behind the scenes in Washington for the past sixteen years. Like Hitler, they have decided that "democracy is decadent" and they want to replace American democracy with some form of collectivism, call it by whatever name you wish.

Power to those of this school of thought is merely a means of finishing what already has been well begun—a bloodless revolution in the United States. So long as these fervent souls have control of departments of government, they can work busily while Americans sleep, speeding along "The Day" when free economy is wiped out and regimentation takes over.

Both these groups now can see the handwriting on the wall for the present regime. Whatever may have been the prospects a few months ago, today they know that nothing short of a miracle can re-elect President Truman.

The result has been the persistent effort to have New Deal laws extended for years instead of merely enough to tide over to the next Administration; to appoint certain chosen officers likewise for many years to come; and to commit the nation to programs reaching far into the future.

An example of the latter is the familiar Marshall Plan, which was originally laid out as a four-year program. Since then, it has been reduced to fifteen months. In its first form, it would have run over three years of the next President's term, and would have been, of course, one of the dominating factors during his Administration.

Although Congress shortened the program to run out early in the next President's term, it may be that the country already is too deeply committed to be able to withdraw a year from now, even though a Republican President might think results as of that date were unsatisfactory.

The situation is a bit like the wheeze about the two morons, one of whom looked out the sixth story window and saw the other falling past. "This is terrible!" said the first moron. "Oh, it isn't so bad," said the one in the air. "I'm doing all right so far!"

The point is that an incoming Republican President may find a host of unfriendly New Dealers frozen into office under the Marshall Plan, should he come to office next January, and discover his hands tied in trying to modify the plan even though it seemed headed for disaster.

Another instance of the Administration trying to commit the next (and presumably Republican) President well into the future lies in the demand that the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act be extended, not for a single year, but for three.

Activities of Interest To All in The Various Communities

GLEANEED BY SCRIBES

A little Polish girl, whose family was killed by the Germans, has been "adopted" by 10 girls at Erwinna, aged seven to 12 years.

These girls, all members of the Arlene Aircs Clubs, under the sponsorship of Miss Josephine Braun, Erwinna, have sent overseas a $10 food package through CARE relief agency. They earned every bit of the ten dollars themselves.

Kronigkajt, their "adopted" friend in Poland, is a large gift box which they have sent her containing candy, crayons, story books, paints, paper and, typical of young children, a soap bubble pipe!

In session at the home of Mrs. Harry A. Biggard, at Warrington, this week, members of the Bucks County Chapter of the D. A. R. displayed a number of prized possessions, some of which were quite old.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

The leadership of the CIO United Steelworkers announced that it would adhere to its no-strike pledge while striving to win pay increases. The decision followed an announcement by the United States Steel Corporation and other companies that in an attempt to stabilize living costs they would reduce prices and refuse to grant pay rises. A shortage of coal and steel will lead to a lay-off of 200,000 men at General Motors during the next three weeks.

Congress has been urged by the armed services to create immediately an industrial reserve for war production. This reserve would consist of extensive Government-owned plants and machine tools and would be part of a general program making it possible to mobilize the nation's entire economy promptly in the event of war.

Delegates of the United States, Britain and France at the United Nations General Assembly were endeavoring to reach an agreement for a temporary trusteeship plan that could become effective by the time the British ended their withdrawal from Palestine May 15. The Security Council voted 8 to 0, with three abstentions, to establish a commission to supervise the implementation of a Palestine truce. In London, it was indicated that if King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan made good his threat to use the Arab Legion against the Jews in Palestine, Britain would recall all British officers now serving with the Legion.

With Jewish control of Haifa complete except for a pocket of Arab resistance in the market area and for the British security zones, the Jewish military commander in the port announced "Haganah military law" would prevail. Tens of thousands of Arabs gathered at concentration points awaited transport from the city.

In Berlin the Soviet air chief supported press reports that the Russians were planning to restrict the air transportation of the Western powers into the former German capital.

Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria signed a treaty calling for mutual defense in the event of German aggression by any power associated with Germany, against either signatory.

Secretary of State Marshall boarded a plane in Bogota to return home after having informed the Inter-American Conference that his departure was necessary because of "the pressure of important matters" in Washington.

Postmaster Duffy said, "when a single-motor, open cockpit plane took off from East Potomac Park in Washington, D. C. bound for New York, N. Y. 218 miles away, is a thrilling chapter in our national life. For it contains all the elements that go into the growth and development of a nation and its people—perseverance, patience, courage, hope, and faith."

"The success of that original 218-mile route," Postmaster Duffy stated, "is today represented in a network of 130,000 miles of air routes in the United States, and a foreign air service that reaches into every country on the globe. Air mail was perhaps, more than any other factor, responsible for the development of an air transport system and aviation industry unequalled anywhere in the world—a combination which serves our nation in a world at peace, and which is and has proved itself a real bulwark in protecting the ideals of those who want government based on democratic principles."

"Air mail," postmaster Duffy added, "is more than a means of transport."

Edward G. Biester, District Attorney of Bucks County, Orders the Lid Clamped Down, Regardless of Nature of Games of Chance—Bingo, Slot Machines, Pools, Chances and Other Games of Such Character to Pass Out Tomorrow at Midnight.

Consternation struck into the hearts of the "easy money boys," and the girls as well, early today and last evening, when the word was passed around that all forms of gambling were to close this week-end. After that, regardless of who the operators are, they will be picked up and prosecuted.

Halt to all gambling in Bucks County was ordered by Edward G. Biester, Bucks County District Attorney. All police departments in the county, as well as all State Police barracks, were notified by letters received late yesterday.

In the letter, District Attorney Biester wrote that "numerous complaints have been made to this office in reference to gambling in various sections of the county."

Then, he continued, if these conditions do exist the complaints cannot be ignored.

Continuing, the District Attorney explained: "Cessation of gambling is to include, but not limited to, slot machines, whether in clubs or elsewhere; punchboards, the writing of numbers, bookmaking, and similar activities."

All is to be stopped within a reasonable time, and if after that they are continued, those operating the same are to be prosecuted.

PARKING METERS NOT IN SERVICE

Don't Put Your Money In Those on Bath Street

10 HAVE BEEN PLACED

Keep your money in your pocket? Mr. Motorist.

Those parking meters on Bath street, near the intersection of Otter street, are not in operation. The meters have been installed and will be placed in operation at a later date, according to information obtainable at police headquarters.

A total of 10 meters have been placed. Four on one side of the street and six on the other. The meters were removed from the foot of Mill street, at Itadcliffe street, and from one or two locations on Mill street, which have been made bus stops.

Other parking regulations recently established are not effective yet, either. Other changes are to be made, it is reported, in traffic regulations in the borough and it is presumed that these will be announced when they become effective.

"No Parking" signs recently placed on the east side of Mulberry street have been removed.

Arabs and Jews in Pre-Dawn Clash

Jerusalem—Two Iraqi Arabs were reported killed and scores wounded today in a pre-dawn clash with British police in Haifa. The outbreak brought new panic and confusion to the port city which Jews captured from the communications hub.

The blow struck by the head prosecuting officer of Bucks county was sudden, and fell with great surprise.

It affects principally fraternal and social clubs in the county, of which there are said to be 40 licensed, with a combined membership of approximately 20,000.

Gambling has run rampant throughout the county for some time, and took various forms. There was bingo, 50-50 clubs, 10-40 and 50 clubs, punchboard, pinball machines and chance selling. The money involved ran into the thousands of dollars.

Bingo games in Bristol were being conducted on six nights a week, with the "jack-pot" amounting to $100 and $200. The "10-40-50 clubs" sometimes would total as high as $1,300.

It is generally reported that many clubs existed primarily on what was received through the various games of chance. Some of these clubs have been heavy contributors to charity. In Doylestown, which several months ago was cleared of all slot machines, it was reported that organizations conducting games of chance had contributed as high as $10,000 to charity.

Conditions similar to those existing in Bristol have existed in practically every other community in the county. The stakes were going higher and higher, and it is believed that because of the size of the stakes and money involved the crack-down was ordered.

Both these groups now can see the handwriting on the wall for the present regime. Whatever may have been the prospects a few months ago, today they know that nothing short of a miracle can re-elect President Truman.

The result has been the persistent effort to have New Deal laws extended for years instead of merely enough to tide over to the next Administration; to appoint certain chosen officers likewise for many years to come; and to commit the nation to programs reaching far into the future.

An example of the latter is the familiar Marshall Plan, which was originally laid out as a four-year-plus program. Since then, it has been reduced to fifteen months. In its first form, it would have run over three years of the next President's term, and would have been, of course, one of the dominating factors during his Administration.

Although Congress shortened the program to run out early in the next President's term, it may be that the country already is too deeply committed to be able to withdraw a year from now, even though a Republican President might think results as of that date were unsatisfactory.

The situation is a bit like the wheeze about the two morons, one of whom looked out the sixth story window and saw the other falling past. "This is terrible!" said the first moron. "Oh, it isn't so bad," said the one in the air. "I'm doing all right so far!"

The point is that an incoming Republican President may find a host of unfriendly New Dealers frozen into office under the Marshall Plan, should he come to office next January, and discover his hands tied in trying to modify the plan even though it seemed headed for disaster.

Another instance of the Administration trying to commit the next (and presumably Republican) President well into the future lies in the demand that the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act be extended, not for a single year, but for three.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All in The Various Communities

CLEANED BY SCRIBES

A little Polish girl, whose family was killed by the Germans, has been "adopted" by 10 girls at Erwinna, aged seven to 12 years.

These girls, all members of the Arlene Aires Clubs, under the sponsorship of Miss Josephine Braun, Erwinna, have sent overseas a $10 food package through CARE relief agency. They earned every bit of the ten dollars themselves.

Kronigkaj, their "adopted" friend in Poland, is a large gift box which they have sent her containing candy, crayons, story books, paints, paper and, typical of young children, a soap bubble pipe!

In session at the home of Mrs. Harry A. Biggard, at Warrington, this week, members of the Bucks County Chapter of the D. A. R. displayed a number of prized possessions, some of which were quite old.

30TH ANNIVERSARY OF AIRMAIL ANTICIPATED

Postmaster Tells of The Part Such Service Played in Italian Elections

130,000 ROUTE MILES

"The 30th anniversary of the United States Air Mail Service will be observed during the week of May 15 to May 21," Postmaster Joseph P. Duffy announced today.

"Many people may not realize it, but our airmail service played an important part in the recent elections held in Italy. Why, in the days prior to the elections there, our bins to that country were being continually filled to capacity. Airmail letters from Bristol residents to people in the old country, no doubt telling them to denounce Communism, were at a high level just prior to the voting. And even in the larger cities such as New York and Philadelphia we got the same reports," said the postmaster.

After terminating his brief talk about Italy, the postmaster gave a concise story of the airmail service.

"The story of the growth of airmail since May 15, 1918," Postmaster Duffy said, "when a single-motor, open cockpit plane took off from East Potomac Park in Washington, D. C., bound for New York, N. Y., 218 miles away, is a thrilling chapter in our national life. For it contains all the elements that go into the growth and development of a nation and its people—perseverance, patience, courage, hope, and faith."

"The success of that original 218-mile route," Postmaster Duffy stated, "is today represented in a network of 130,000 miles of air routes in the United States, and a foreign air service that reaches into every country on the globe. Airmail was perhaps, more than any other factor, responsible for the development of an air transport system and aviation industry unequalled anywhere in the world—a combination which serves our nation in a world at peace, and which is and has proved itself a real bulwark in protecting the ideals of those who want government based on democratic principles."

"Airmail," postmaster Duffy added, "is more than a means of transport."

Edward G. Biester, District Attorney of Bucks County, Orders the Lid Clamped Down, Regardless of Nature of Games of Chance—Bingo, Slot Machines, Pools, Chances and Other Games of Such Character to Pass Out Tomorrow at Midnight.

Consternation struck into the hearts of the "easy money boys," and the girls as well, early today and last evening, when the word was passed around that all forms of gambling were to close this week-end. After that, regardless of who the operators are, they will be picked up and prosecuted.

Halt to all gambling in Bucks County was ordered by Edward G. Biester, Bucks County District Attorney. All police departments in the county, as well as all State Police barracks, were notified by letters received late yesterday.

In the letter, District Attorney Biester wrote that "numerous complaints have been made to this office in reference to gambling in various sections of the county."

Then, he continued, if these conditions do exist the complaints cannot be ignored.

Continuing, the District Attorney explained: "Cessation of gambling is to include, but not limited to, slot machines, whether in clubs or elsewhere; punchboards, the writing of numbers, bookmaking, and similar activities."

All is to be stopped within a reasonable time, and if after that they are continued, those operating the same are to be prosecuted.

FARMING'S FUTURE

Young men in search of a field with a reasonably stable future, and which at the same time offers opportunities for those with initiative and the courage to take risks in order to make a profit, might look into a report Secretary of Agriculture Anderson has just transmitted to the House Committee on Agriculture. Clint's report indicates that farming is just such a field.

He finds that prospects for the products of American agriculture over the next five to 25—why not 10 to 50?—years are "relatively good." This judgment, he adds, takes into account "some slackening of business, as well as a reduction in foreign demand."

This forecast must be considered against the history of farming in this country after World War I. During that struggle farm prices rose to high levels and brought prosperity to millions of American farmers. But later, when exports fell off, there came a decline that ruined many of the over-optimistic and left others impoverished for a decade—and longer. Indeed, agriculture did not really recover until World War II.

So the significance of this report is that the Department of Agriculture does not expect a recurrence of the blight that fell upon farming in the years between the two great wars. It thinks, even though it says that its "conclusions can be nothing more than a statement of chances," that prices of farm products will generally hold well above the low level of the '30s.

NO NUMBERS

Until somebody comes along with a better argument than has so far been advanced, Americans will have nothing to do with the plan, proposed by the Public Health Service, to give every child born in America a serial number. That such a scheme has been proposed is proof that this bureau is overstaffed and should be subjected to the economy ax by Congress.

Americans are opposed to the idea on at least two grounds. In the first place, it snuffs of more governmental regimentation. In the second place, acceptance of it would call for the creation of an expensive new department with a horde of employees and eventually a separate building to hold the files and records that would be certain to be accumulated.

For what purpose? The reasons advanced for this screwball idea are so crazy that it would be a waste of space to repeat them here. But as long as the federal government has at least a million more employees than it needs or should have, proposals such as this one will be spewed forth at regular intervals.

American parents want their babies to be known as John Smith or Jane Doe, and not as 101-49-000001.

Three per cent of America's millionaires die annually, and heirs and inheritance taxes take care of the millions.

Likewise with the current rumpus between Congress and the President over the Atomic Energy Board. This is a renewal of the bitter fight early last year that centered on the appointment by the President of David E. Lilienthal to be chairman of this important and sensitive body.

The objection was made by the critics of Mr. Lilienthal that his record showed him to be a very poor administrator; and further, that his personal views might be, he had proved a pashover for the radicals in every high position he ever held.

The appointment was finally confirmed, for a single year, which expires next August. The reason the scrap is being resumed, however, is a little more complicated than merely the expiration of the term of appointment.

When the President's re-appointment was submitted the policy committee of Congress notified the President that it would approve Mr. Lilienthal for one year. This would carry the matter past the elections next November, and leave future decisions on the lap of the next President.

Mr. Truman refused to cooperate or compromise. He insisted that the appointment be for five full years. That of course, would carry Mr. Lilienthal, barring impeachment or disqualification by some other means, not only through the term of the next President, but several months into that of the President who succeeds the next one!

For all the hurrah about the Atomic Energy Commission and its importance as a winner of future wars, the fact still remains that it is a happy sort of a job for those who like prestige, mystery, and the aura of being indispensable. It would offer a splendid storm-center for New Dealers to protect them from Republican blizzards!

In all these matters, there has been a good deal of discussion of the fact that the President's policies have been unfair to Congress, which doesn't want to commit future and unknown Presidents; and to the Republican Party, which certainly should be allowed to take office next year. If victorious next November, without being hamstrung in advance. But much more to the point is the unfairness of these long-time commitments to the voters of the United States.

They are the ones who really lose. The whole theory of the American form of government is that the people shall be able to rule through their elections. How can they, if the "ins" succeed in tying things up for years to come?

FARMING'S FUTURE

Young men in search of a field with a reasonably stable future, and which at the same time offers opportunities for those with initiative and the courage to take risks in order to make a profit, might look into a report Secretary of Agriculture Anderson has just transmitted to the House Committee on Agriculture. Clint's report indicates that farming is just such a field.

He finds that prospects for the products of American agriculture over the next five to 25—why not 10 to 50?—years are "relatively good." This judgment, he adds, takes into account "some slackening of business, as well as a reduction in foreign demand."

This forecast must be considered against the history of farming in this country after World War I. During that struggle farm prices rose to high levels and brought prosperity to millions of American farmers. But later, when exports fell off, there came a decline that ruined many of the over-optimistic and left others impoverished for a decade—and longer. Indeed, agriculture did not really recover until World War II.

So the significance of this report is that the Department of Agriculture does not expect a recurrence of the blight that fell upon farming in the years between the two great wars. It thinks, even though it says that its "conclusions can be nothing more than a statement of chances," that prices of farm products will generally hold well above the low level of the '30s.

NO NUMBERS

Until somebody comes along with a better argument than has so far been advanced, Americans will have nothing to do with the plan, proposed by the Public Health Service, to give every child born in America a serial number. That such a scheme has been proposed is proof that this bureau is overstaffed and should be subjected to the economy axe by Congress.

Americans are opposed to the idea on at least two grounds. In the first place, it smacks of more governmental regimentation. In the second place, acceptance of it would call for the creation of an expensive new department with a horde of employees and eventually a separate building to hold the files and records that would be certain to be accumulated.

For what purpose? The reasons advanced for this screwball idea are so crazy that it would be a waste of space to repeat them here. But as long as the federal government has at least a million more employees than it needs or should have, proposals such as this one will be spewed forth at regular intervals.

American parents want their babies to be known as John Smith or Jane Doe, and not as 101-49-000001.

Three per cent of America's millionaires die annually, and heirs and inheritance taxes take care of the millions.

Likewise with the current rumormongering between Congress and the President over the Atomic Energy Board. This is a renewal of the bitter fight early last year that centered on the appointment by the President of David E. Lilienthal to be chairman of this important and sensitive body.

The objection was made by the critics of Mr. Lilienthal, that his record showed him to be a very poor administrator; and further, that whatever Mr. Lilienthal's personal views might be, he had proved a pushover for the radicals in every high position he ever held.

The appointment was finally confirmed, for a single year, which expires next August. The reason the scrap is being resumed, however, is a little more complicated than merely the expiration of the term of appointment.

When the President's re-appointment was submitted, the policy committee of Congress notified the President that it would approve Mr. Lilienthal for one year. This would carry the matter past the elections next November, and leave future decisions on the lap of the next President.

Mr. Truman refused to cooperate or compromise. He insisted that the appointment be for five full years. That, of course, would carry Mr. Lilienthal (barring impeachment or disqualification by some other means) not only through the term of the next President, but several months into that of the President who succeeds the next one!

For all the burrah about the Atomic Energy Commission and its importance as a winner of future wars, the fact still remains that it is a happy sort of a job for those who like prestige, mystery, and the aura of being indispensable. It would offer a splendid stork-cellar for New Dealers to protect them from Republican blizzards!

In all these matters, there has been a good deal of discussion of the fact that the President's policies have been unfair to Congress, which doesn't want to commit future wars, the fact still remains that it is a happy sort of a job for those who like prestige, mystery, and the aura of being indispensable. It would offer a splendid stork-cellar for New Dealers to protect them from Republican blizzards!

They are the ones who really lose. The whole theory of the American form of government is that the people shall be able to rule through their elections. How can they, if the "ins" succeed in tying things up for years to come?

will meet at the home of Mrs. Paul Kropp, Riverview avenue, Edgely; Wednesday, eight p. m., prayer and Bible study, continuing study from 1 Peter, 2:11-25; Thursday, eight p. m., senior choir rehearsal; eight p. m., softball team meeting at the church; Friday, four p. m., junior choir rehearsal.

On Sunday afternoon at four o'clock a Lutheran Hour rally will take place at Town Hall, Broad and Race streets, Philadelphia, with the Rev. Walter A. Maier, speaker of the International Lutheran Hour, delivering the message on the subject, "Christ, Not Communism." Members of the choir of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Crofton, will take part in this rally, singing with the large massed chorus under direction of William Smith, of Westminster Choir College, Princeton, N. J. The committeeman for St. Luke's Church, Harlan Jester, announced that there will be a massing of the flags of all nations on the stage at Town Hall. Dr. Maier today addresses a radio audience estimated at fifteen million on the largest religious broadcast in the world with outlets of over 1,000 stations. The public is invited to attend this rally. All seats are free.

Eternal Spirit, who has placed eternity in our hearts and a task in our hands, make us what we should become. We have tried living on our own terms, and we have failed. Help us to live in accord with Thy will. We have tried what we thought we wanted and now know that our need is Thy presence in our hearts. O come to us as we draw nigh unto Thee that our days may have new meaning and new purpose. In the spirit of the Master, we pray, Amen.

Among them was a British powder horn marked Robert Moor, Londonderry, a Bible printed in 1788, a locket picture dated 1741, an epaulet worn by a captain who served during the War of 1812 and a bedspread made of cotton grown on a farm in Virginia and woven by a girl 18 years of age.

One of the members took to the meeting a framed genealogy, the earliest date on which was 1758. A sampler marked 1788 was shown, as was also a letter written at Bellevue Seminary in 1867. The seminary then was located at Attleboro, now Langhorne.

Today's Quiet Moment

Eternal Spirit, who has placed eternity in our hearts and a task in our hands, make us what we should become. We have tried living on our own terms, and we have failed. Help us to live in accord with Thy will. We have tried what we thought we wanted and now know that our need is Thy presence in our hearts. O come to us as we draw nigh unto Thee that our days may have new meaning and new purpose. In the spirit of the Master, we pray. Amen.

Among them was a British powder horn marked Robert Moor, Londonderry, a Bible printed in 1788, a locket picture dated 1741, an equestrian portrait of a captain who served during the War of 1812 and a bedspread made of cotton grown on a farm in Virginia and woven by a girl 16 years of age.

One of the members took to the meeting a framed genealogy, the earliest date on which was 1758. A sampler marked 1788 was shown, as was also a letter written at Bellevue Seminary in 1867. The seminary then was located at Attleboro, now Langhorne.

Another letter, written in Nova Scotia and addressed to relatives in Massachusetts in 1776, warned of the dangers in travelling because of the war. Of particular interest was a brooch with hair enclosed. This, it is believed, was worn about 1660.

A story of the Byrd and Shippen families at Shippensburg was read. One of the members displayed a copy of a Philadelphia publication printed in 1836, and another member showed another publication printed in Wilkes Barre in 1832 by Elijah Worthington.

In the absence of the regent, Mrs. William G. Herridge, who is attending the 57th Continental Congress of the D. A. R. in Washington, D. C., the meeting was in charge of the vice regent, Mrs. Arvine Clark.

'SQUEEZE PLAY' BY HIGH SCHOOL NINE WINS OVER BROWN

Bristol High worked a perfect "squeeze" play yesterday afternoon to nose out the Brown Prep nine, 3-2, on the home field in a tilt which required two extra sessions.

"Dave" Morrell laid down the bunt which gave the Warriors the triumph. Frank Elker had singled and stole both second and third. Coach Jerry Bloom gave the "squeeze" sign and Morrell bunted down third base. Elker crossed the plate with the winning tally and even though the Brown Prep hurler felled the ball he had no chance for a play.

Hits were scarce in the nine inning contest, Bristol having eight and Brown Prep, six. Three of Bristol's hits went to Morrell with Elker and Joe Dominic getting a pair each. The other safety was made by "Bill" DeRisi.

Dave Muth did the hill work for the Warriors and did an excellent job, only one of the Brown Prep's runs being earned. Muth allowed but two hits in the last four innings and gave three free tickets to first.

Both teams drew blanks for the first three frames but Brown Prep hit pay dirt in the fourth on successive singles by Lefever, Gerst, and Brancato. But Muth retired the side without further trouble.

Bristol evened the count in their part of the inning on a double by Dominic and single by Morrell. But the visitors jumped into the lead again in the fourth on errors by Linder and Dominic and a hit by Lefever.

In the sixth, Bristol knotted the score for the second time on a hit by Dominic, an error by Brancato, and a single by Morrell.

Muth ran into plenty of trouble in the seventh but escaped having a score made on him, Brown Prep having two runners on base as the result of a hit and fielder's choice and then a pass.

speeding communications across the land and to foreign countries; rather it is synonymous with our national well-being and our hopes and aspirations for future progress. In these momentous days of decision, it is gratifying to know, because of the impetus given to aviation by the United States Air Mail Service, that we have available a potent instrument for good not only for ourselves, but for the world.

"As postmaster of Bristol, I call upon the citizens of Bristol to join with me in observing the 30th anniversary of air mail during the week of May 15."

Postmaster Duffy released some other interesting facts about the air service:

In 1918 there were 218 miles of air mail routes. On January 1, 1948, there were 125,000 miles of domestic air mail routes; from May 15 to December 31, 1918, planes carrying air mail flew 82,841 miles; for the year ending June 30, 1947, planes carrying air mail flew 314,505,965 revenue miles; the average domestic air mail letter travelled 1402 miles in 1947; there are 120,000 miles of foreign air mail routes served by American carriers; in 1919 there was a total of eight planes in operation on air mail routes; in 1948 there are 796 planes in operation daily carrying domestic air mail; and air mail service is operated in every country in the world. American carriers transporting air mail serve 75 countries direct.

BRISTOW'S BAT IS TOO STRONG FOR ST. FRANCIS

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Apr. 24.—"Whitey" Bristow wielded a potent bat yesterday afternoon as the Bensalem Owls downed the St. Francis Vocational School, 9-6, on the Bensalem field.

With a double and triple, Bristow drove in five runs, his triple coming with the bags loaded in the fourth. Bristow's two-bagger was a tremendous clout to center-field but ground rules made the hit a double.

Coach "Woody" Wetherhold started his mound ace, "Ed" Tinsman, and after getting a comfortable lead decided to rest his hurler. Frank Koby went in and Koby did well until the seventh.

The St. Francis lads scored five runs in this inning and Koby was relieved by "Wall" Fredericks. Fredericks fanned the side but in between Ray Schoenwolf crashed out a triple with the bags loaded. It was Schoenwolf's third hit of the fracas.

In the third session, Neil Moeller clouted a home run to left field with Franco on base.

"Al" Bader, freshman catcher of the Owls, watched the game from the bench. Bader was spiked in the first game of the season but may see action before the season is over.

ships, 8 school districts and the town of Bloomsburg.

Amusement taxes adopted, and proposed, principally cover movie theatres, sporting events, circuses and other types of commercial amusement. Rates generally are fixed at 10 per cent.

The number of communities imposing income taxes was swelled by action of 13 boroughs and school districts in Mercer county which followed the lead of Sharon. Twenty communities, including Johnstown, Scranton, Monessen and Jeanette, now levy on incomes.

Taxes on natural products, principally coal, have been adopted or considered by more than 50 political subdivisions. Levies on coal mined ranged from one per cent to 10 cents per ton. Certain communities have taxed the processing, marketing or loading of coal.

Pittsburgh and ten third-class cities have adopted mercantile taxes for wholesalers and retailers, ranging from one-half mill to five mills. Seven boroughs and two school districts also adopted or were considering the levy.

At least ten third-class cities have adopted per capita or poll taxes ranging from $2 to $5, the report stated, and 28 boroughs have adopted or were considering similar measures.

The bingo games were being attended by as many women as men, and in a number of instances the women outnumbered the men.

Bingo has been operated throughout the county by fire companies, clubs, and in some instances, by churches.

With receipt of the "stop" word a flood of queries was directed to officials. Each group wanted to know if the order affected them.

'SQUEEZE PLAY' BY HIGH SCHOOL NINE WINS OVER BROWN

Bristol High worked a perfect "squeeze" play yesterday afternoon to nose out the Brown Prep nine, 3-2, on the home field in a tilt which required two extra sessions.

"Dave" Morrell laid down the bunt which gave the Warriors the triumph. Frank Elker had singled and stole both second and third. Coach Jerry Bloom gave the "squeeze" sign and Morrell bunted down third base. Elker crossed the plate with the winning tally and even though the Brown Prep hurler fielded the ball he had no chance for a play.

Hits were scarce in the nine inning contest, Bristol having eight and Brown Prep six. Three of Bristol's hits went to Morrell with Elker and Joe Dominic getting a pair each. The other safety was made by "Bill" DeRisi.

Dave Muth did the bill work for the Warriors and did an excellent job, only one of the Brown Prep's runs being earned. Muth allowed but two hits in the last four innings and gave three free tickets to first.

Both teams drew blanks for the first three frames but Brown Prep hit pay dirt in the fourth on successive singles by Lefever, Gerat, and Brancato. But Muth retired the side without further trouble.

Bristol evened the count in their part of the inning on a double by Dominic and single by Morrell. But the visitors jumped into the lead again in the fourth on errors by Lefever and Dominic and a hit by Lefever.

In the sixth, Bristol knotted the score for the second time on a hit by Dominic, an error by Brancato, and a single by Morrell.

Muth ran into plenty of trouble in the seventh but escaped having a score made on him, Brown Prep having two runners on base as the result of a hit and fielder's choice and then a pass.
